

Tracing the Landscape: Cumbrian Farm Women

Monday, January 28, 2019 5:37 PM

Clipped from: <https://www.cumbriacrack.com/2018/02/21/tracing-landscape-cumbrian-farm-women/>

Advertise

Contact

Travel

Privacy & Cookies

Terms

Home > Arts > Tracing the Landscape: Cumbrian Farm Women

Arts

Tracing the Landscape: Cumbrian Farm Women

by Cumbria Crack © 21/02/2018

0

Mary Brough

Women who make their mark in the male-dominated world of farming are the focus of a new exhibition.

Tracing the Landscape: Cumbrian Farm Women, runs from 2 March to 9 June 2018 at Abbot Hall Art Gallery, Kendal. The multi-media exhibition by artist Patricia MacKinnon-Day has been commissioned by Lakeland Arts.

Patricia spent a year with five farm women from across Cumbria. Aged between 30 and 80, some have managed farms for generations, others are newer to the sector.

During the exhibition visitors will immerse themselves in the stories of these five farm women by entering specially created sheds in the Gallery to watch individual films about their lives.

A play on all the senses, each shed will feature historic agricultural objects from the Museum of Lakeland Life & Industry, part of Lakeland Arts' collection, as well as possessions and materials chosen by the women.

Tracing the Landscape: Cumbrian Farm Women examines female roles in farming, their hopes, frustrations and place in an industry often seen as a 'man's world'. They each have wide-ranging, passionate and differing views on their industry, but are united as women farmers.

Patricia MacKinnon-Day

Patricia MacKinnon-Day said: "To these five women, farming is not a job but a way of life. It is in their blood. Male voices around farming are well-documented, however women are often overlooked. Women farmers always seem pushed into the background. I wanted to bring the stories of this often marginalised group to the fore."

The 2018 Lakeland Arts' programme of exhibitions and events links to the national celebrations surrounding the Representation of the People Act 1918 which allowed women to vote for the first time in Britain, highlighting gender discrimination in the art world.

Jennie Pitceathly, Head of Learning at Lakeland Arts, said: "The five women who feature in the exhibition are rooted to the landscape, the land and their communities. Tracing the Landscape will bring their voices and experiences to a wider audience."

Frances Guy, Director of Programming (temporary) Lakeland Arts said: "We are delighted to be working with Patricia MacKinnon-Day and using contemporary art as a way of exploring the lives of Cumbrian communities."

Patricia MacKinnon-Day added: "There is a sub-text to the exhibition that the stories of women in agriculture are often invisible. The exhibition will also look at the standing of the women in their communities as they consider 'where they sit' in society."

Tracing the Landscape also furthers the theme of landscape – of bringing the outside in – to Abbot Hall.

Maria Benjamin

The exhibition coincides with the display of Monet masterpiece Haystacks: Snow Effect – which is believed to be the very first time a Monet has been displayed in Cumbria.

Also on show is new contemporary digital work by Katie Spragg. This includes a stop-frame animation which explores memories, experiences and interactions with nature and While Away which sees visitors recline on a chair to watch grass made of porcelain blow in the wind. Both works evoke a sense of wonder about being outside in nature.

The exhibition comes at a time when there is increased focus on the Lake District, its landscape and people, after it was awarded UNESCO World Heritage Status in summer 2017.

On 22 March at 6pm a special panel event linked to the exhibition takes place at Abbot Hall. Women in Conversation will explore life in the rural landscape and issues affecting farming today.

During the event exhibition artist, Patricia MacKinnon-Day will be joined by Sian Lincoln, ethnographer and communications lecturer at Liverpool John Moores University.

They will answer questions from those present and people watching the event live on Facebook. Admission to Women in Conversation: Standard £10 / Friends of Lakeland Arts £7.50.

FRANCES GUY KATIE SPRAGG LAKELAND ARTS MARIA BENJAMIN

< PREVIOUS POST

Search begins in Penrith for Screwfix's top Trade Apprentice 2018

NEXT POST >

Alleged boarding school assault claims "fantasy", says former owner

RELATED POSTS

Fabricating haystacks among Easter activities at Lakeland Arts

Windermere Jetty to open in spring 2019 following £20million development

Refuge: The Art of Belonging

You May Like

Sponsored Links by Taboola

Incredible Funeral Plan Sweeps Platt Bridge

Money Advice Club

Susan Boyle is So Skinny Now and Looks Gorgeous

MedicalMatters

Halifax To Issue £19 Billion To The Public (Look Up Your Name)

Financial Guru

Born before 1965? You're Eligible For Revolutionary New ...

Optical Express

Homeowners Who Took a Mortgage Between 1988 - 201...

ThePPIFinder

Change Is Coming to Cremation And Funeral Pricing

Consumer Daily

Our Networks

	94.4k Followers	189 Followers
G+	in	t
220 Followers

Recent Posts

New Shop comes

Family pay tribute in M61 collision

An Evening With I

Cumbrian health c with an honorary

Penrith graduate Shakespeare app

LINKS

- Cumbria County Council Road
- Works Map
- Cumbria Power Cuts
- Flood Warnings
- Gas Emergencies
- Gauge Map River Gauges
- Live traffic info for Cumbria
- United Utilities Water Emergencies
- Weather Warnings

CATEGORIES

Select Category

f			G+	in	t
---	--	--	----	----	---	--	--	--

Privacy & Cookies: This site uses cookies. By continuing to use this website, you agree to their use. To find out more, including how to control cookies, see here: Cookie Policy

Close and accept