To mark the 30th anniversary of the Nike Air Max 95, Sole-Zine spent 2025 documenting the voices of the AM95 trianer community in Liverpool. The 110 Voices exhibition offers a unique insight into the ritualistic behaviour and emotional attachment to this specific footwear within the city. In collaboration with The Block P 110 voices were captured to celebrate what this shoe means to them. Unveiling how this shoe represents obsession, style, place and community, but also, so much more than this. As part of this collaborative exhibition, a series of six pairs of 3D printed AM95 shoes, customised by two local Graffiti Artists Heavy Salad and Icer were showcased, signifying the development of this creative culture through a different lens.
